y Officer's School, Lajos" in Budapest	1955	5X1
	12 April 1957

- 1. The Kossuth Lajos Artillery Officers' School in Budapest was headed by Colonel Vilmos KOLTAI, artillery, in 1955. His deputy was Lieutenant Colonel (fmu) BARANCY, anti-aircraft artillery. The School also had a political advisor, a lieutenant colonel, in charge of the political section. The political advisor had the final say in defense matters.
- 2. The School had two divisions, field artillery and anti-aircraft artillery. The field artillery included anti-tank weapons. The School also had eight training companies, each company consisting of four platoons. The field artillery division had five companies while the anti-aircraft division had only three. Each platoon had 22 to 2h students, and each had a specialty, such as anti-tank, (with 57 and 76 mm guns), mine thrower, surveyor, field canon, communications. Each company had as officers one company commander (captain), four platoon leaders (first lieutenants), one policical advisor (first lieutenant) and one service officer (second lieutenant).
- 3. The officer candidates were required to take examinations in the following six fields, the most important of which was the first:
  - a. Harxism-Leninism
  - b. Artillery Gunmanship
  - c. Artillery Material
  - d. Service Regulations
  - e. Tactics
  - f. Physical Training.
